SCHOOL REPORT.

Your committee would respectfully submit the following report:

DISTRICT No. 1.—Village, South.

The Summer term was taught by Miss Lydia A. Batchelder, of Concord, a graduate of the High School in that place. She passed a very satisfactory examination, and promised to be a successful teacher. A good degree of enthusiasm was manifested at the commencement of the school, but it soon began to wane. The teacher evidently took little pains with the school after the first week or two, and things went from bad to worse, until it was thought best to bring it to a close sooner than was at first anticipated. Miss B. was entirely competent, and why she did not make more of an effort is not understood. She is however deserving of credit for drilling her pupils in writing. In this branch her success was remarkable.

The Winter term was taught by Mr. Alvin Hadley, an old and well-known teacher. The term was a longer one than this district has had for a long time, and its effects were seen at the examination, when a very marked progress from other terms was discovered. If the order was not as good as desirable, the school house must share the responsibility. The teacher labored faithfully, and if any failed to be greatly profited by the school, they have themselves to blame.

This school-house remains about the same as last year, though it was repaired so as to be barely comfortable for the winter. But it is a standing disgrace to the place. It is a short sighted policy to scrimp on our school-houses, furniture and teachers. If the same policy that is pursued in some of the districts, were the policy of all the districts in the State, the remark attributed to Mr. Webster, "that New Hampshire was a good State in which to raise men," would no longer be true. A generous policy in this direction would be a paying one. It always has been so, and there is no reason to suppose that Goffstown would be an exception to the general rule.

(See under district 13.)

DISTRICT No. 2.—Mountain.

Only one term, taught by Miss Edna V. Carr, of this place. Miss Carr has had but a limited experience, but she will evidently make a good teacher. An excellent scholar and possessed with winning manners and great kindness, she can hardly help attracting her pupils into the fields of knowledge, if given a fair chance. But in this district she had much with which to contend. In the first place the school is so small that it would require something in a teacher almost superhuman to awaken any enthusiasm. Teacher and taught must plod along at a very unpleasant pace. In the second place, there is evidently wanting in this district, that harmony of feeling that is conducive to good schools. The feeling among parents is taken to school by the children. Where such a state of things exists, let not impossibilities be demanded of a teacher.

This school house should be repaired before another school commences. The doors of a school-house ought not, at all times, to stand invitingly open. It would be well to consider the propriety of uniting this district with the adjoining one in New Boston.

DISTRICT No. 3.—Shirley Hill.

Summer term, taught by Miss Jennie E. Hart. It hardly needs to be said that her's was a first-class school. It would have been cheaper, in the end, for almost any district in the place to have so well remunerated her services as teacher, that she would have had no temptation to have left this, for another State. Her school was an excellent one in every respect.

The Winter term, taught by Miss Sarah E. Tinker, of Bedford, was a good one. She labored faithfully, and reaped the fruit of a faithful laborer, in seeing a very good degree of progress in her pupils. This district could hardly do a better thing than to secure her continuance as a teacher. Very much is to be gained by the employment of a good teacher, term after term.

DISTRICT No. 4.—Kennedy Hill.

Summer term. Miss Dollie C. Mathes, teacher. This is a small but very pleasant school. The parents are mostly very much interested in the progress of their children, and are talking seriously of rebuilding their somewhat dilapidated school-house the coming season. It is hoped that they will. The location is pleasant and convenient, and the district abundantly able, and what is better, harmonious. These old structures which so remind us of the past are fast passing away before the advancing strides of "Young America." Give the little ones a nice, pleasant and convenient school-room and they will be all the more ready to grasp what is to many the dry details of learning.

The summer school appeared well at its examination. The order was good. The writing books, with a slight exception, were neatly kept, and the progress made was good.

Most of the studies pursued seemed to be improved upon, unless we except grammar. That simple sentence which was placed upon the board should have been more correctly parsed, if not by the pupil, at least by the teacher.

Winter term by Miss Ella J. Topliff. The school made excellent progress in all the branches taken up, and made a good appearance at its examination in everything but its order. There are some very smart young mathematicians here. Miss Topliff is finely qualified for a teacher but (and we say it in kindness) she will want to carry a firmer hand to succeed in all schools.

DISTRICT No. 5.—Mast Road.

Fall and winter terms by Miss N. Amanda Wyman. This school is one of the enterprising ones, full of spirit and ambition, with a teacher perfectly able and willing to second the scholars in their efforts. The parents take a lively interest in the prosperity of their children and contribute not only their money but what is of far more value to the teacher, their sympathies. Under such circumstances a school cannot fail of being a good one. There are some very fine readers in the school. Taking the number of scholars into consideration, it will be difficult to find so many good readers, grammarians and mathematicians as they can boast of here.

Of Miss Wyman it is not necessary to particularize. Her skill and experience are too well known to need a word of praise.

The area of the district has been largely extended by the annexation of about one-half of the Dow district and the major part of No. 14. Without materially enlarging the school at present, it creates a school fund which, judiciously employed, will give a large amount of schooling for many years to come.

DISTRICT No. 6.—Centre, South side.

Summer term, Miss Myra Worthley, teacher. This was her first attempt at teaching and although young and inexperienced she met with desired success. Well qualified to teach in any of our common schools, and with a disposition to assist and encourage her pupils, she will compare favorably with more experienced teachers. The school appeared well at each visit and the progress made was apparently good.

Winter term by Miss Dollie C. Mathes.

Owing to the Paper Mill fire the number of scholars for the winter term was quite small. In fact so small not much interest was created. The examination was short. A few of the scholars reflected considerable credit upon themselves at least. Perhaps the school, on the whole, was a profitable one.

DISTRICT No. 7.—East.

Summer term by Miss Abbie H. Barnard. Miss Barnard is an experienced teacher and gave good satisfaction to those who attended. The school appeared well at its examination and evinced good progress in the various branches pursued. The "slight unpleasantness" which resulted in securing Miss B. as a teacher, it is hoped is passed. It was virtually expelling several of the best scholars from the school and from the benefits of which they were entitled to share. It is an old maxim and a very good one that "minorities have rights which majorities are bound to respect."

Winter term by Mr. Charles G. Emmons, teacher. Mr. Emmons came very highly recommended as a scholar and gentleman, and with a capacity to teach, from the principal of the New Hampton school, which recommendation he sustained to the satisfaction of all concerned. Without attempting to attain the highest discipline, which is not very popular with the parents of this district, he still preserved good order and secured the good will of pupils and parents. The scholars seemed interested and the progress made was very commendable. The examination passed off with credit to its participants.

The school house, which was doubtless once considered very good, is now one of the very worst in town. The seats are abominable, and the ventilation, if anything, is worse. A new house would be the best thing, but a new arrangement of the seats, a great improvement.

DISTRICT No. 8.—Tebbett's Hill.

Summer term by Miss Susie R. Clifford. Miss Clifford from all accounts gave good satisfaction to the district. The school appeared well at its examination. The scholars are mostly rather backward in their studies and need a long and profitable course. The parents should wake up more to the true interests of the young. It is not enough to clothe the child and start him on the way to the school house. Interest yourselves in his various studies. Sympathise with him in his mental difficulties. Encourage and excite his ambition and the harvest will surprise you no doubt, but you will leave the scholar a legacy that no after trouble can take away.

Winter term by Mr. Charles E. Crosby, teacher. The school appeared well at the commencement, and gave good anticipations of a profitable term. The teacher showed considerable talent in imparting instruction, and the scholars seemed to be interested, but from some cause, perhaps best known to those least interested, the school closed suddenly without an examination. The parents of the district are respectfully invited to read for their instruction the 13th, 14th, and 16th sections of chapter 5th of the Digest of the N. H. school laws. They will probably find there a certain method for the introduction of new school books. If the supply had been ample the books would have been furnished according to law.

DISTRICT No. 9.—Centre, North side.

Summer and winter term by Miss Mary J. George. In securing the services of Miss George the district was most fortunate. Combining a rare talent of imparting instruction, with finished qualifications, she quickly won her way to the affections of her pupils. Her method was new to them in a measure, but was soon appreciated. No lesson was permitted to pass until every particular was fully understood. No point so obscure but was brought to light. In short, an interest was created which did not falter, but seemingly increased to the end. Under such auspices success was guaranteed from the start, and a school was produced which will rank second to none in town. The enthusiasm was not confined to the pupils alone; the friends in large numbers greeted the scholars and teacher at the examinations.

The same process which enlarged No. 5 gave a part of No. 15 to this district. The work so well begun should be carried forward until every district is concentrated as much as possible. Remember that "union is strength," and in this case with increased facilities. No. 6 should be united, also a part of No. 12. Then establish your graded school and enjoy all of the advantages of an academy at home.

DISTRICT No. 10.—Pattee Hill.

Miss Belle A. Austin, of Hooksett, taught the Summer school, a superlatively good one. This district is somehow very fortunate in its teachers. But, in the opinion of your Committee, good fortune here, as elsewhere, comes through efforts, and the use of the right means. Any district that will take pains to appoint a prudential Committee that is thoroughly interested in schools, will almost invariably have good teachers and good schools.

Mr. George Pattee, the teacher of the Winter term, has sustained the opinion expressed in regard to him in the last report. He succeeded very well. Loella Pattee, Annette Martin and Frank L. Buxton attended school in Summer and Winter without receiving a single mark, for which they deserve this credit.

DISTRICT No. 11.—Parker's.

Miss N. Amanda Wyman, teacher, Summer term. Miss W. is an old and well known teacher, who is always successful. She has the peculiar faculty of governing a school without showing her authority. Very quietly and easily she moves among her pupils, keeping them in excellent order, and inciting their enthusiasm. Sixty months' experience in teaching, has so well qualified her that this town should not permit her to engage in this occupation elsewhere.

The winter term was taught by Mr. Jason P. Dearborn, of South Weare. Mr. D. claims to have had an experience of thirty months of teaching, and in that time one should find out whether he is adapted for a particular vocation. He evidently labored hard to have a good school, but not much was accomplished. His education was probably sufficient, though his examination was not quite satisfactory. His lack was, manifestly, an ability to maintain good discipline and awaken respect and enthusiasm. Until children are made of different material from what they are at present it will not generally do to inform them beforehand that corporal punishment will not be inflicted.

In the remarks by the teacher, in the Register, he says: "A few of the older scholars seemed to have no object in view in attending school, and said, in the beginning, they only came because compelled by their parents." Evidently there are some who attend school here, as well as in other districts, who are not yet perfect.

Only one term during the year, taught by Miss Lizzie Sargent, of this place. She had previously taught this school two terms. The school was a good one. The teacher succeeded in awakening more interest than could have been anticipated.

This district will do well to seriously consider if it is not for its advantage to unite with one or more of the other districts. It seems to your committee to be a matter of prime importance. Some of the children would have farther to travel, but it would more than be made up to them in the longer, larger and more enthusiastic schools.

DISTRICT No. 13.—Village, North.

Miss Mardie L. Story, of this place, teacher of the summer term, which was seventeen weeks long. This was her first attempt and was a decided success. She had a superlatively poor school-house, and a large and poorly classified school with which to contend, but notwithstanding this she managed to lead her pupils along in the paths of learning, with such success as to commend her to all with whom she was concerned. She reports thirty-three as not whispering during the term.

Teacher of winter term, Mr. Sylvester Brown, of Bow. He had had but a limited experience in teaching when he commenced. But after this it will be safe to regard him as an old and experienced instructor. The obstacles of the summer term were increased, but so far as he was concerned, he left little to be desired.

It would be an excellent and merited punishment, to cause all in this district, who oppose increased school facilities, a new school house &c., to attend school in their school house for a single term. Long before the term should expire, they would be willing to grant almost any thing that should be asked.

Let this district be united to No. 1; let all, or nearly all of No. 12 be added to it; let all but the extreme north part of No. 11, (which can easily go to No. 10) be joined to it, and then erect a school house of three rooms, have a graded school of three departments, primary, grammar and high, and, if sufficient care is exercised in procuring and retaining good teachers, you will have so good a school, the expense will be returned many times over. It costs from $75 upwards to send a child away from home to school for a single term; and yet the tax necessary to build such a house would hardly equal this sum for a single individual. Then you would have, or might have, with a little extra outlay, as good a school as is any where enjoyed.

Greenleaf's series of Arithmetics has been introduced into the schools during the year. There was a great lack of uniformity in text books in this department, and it was not an easy matter to make a selection from the various competing authors; but after a careful examination, we fixed upon Greenleaf, as, all things considered, the best.
